JECA Student Named National Merit Finalist

Judson Early College Academy senior Noah Zuckerman is honored to be named a National Merit Finalist. The announcement came from the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, a non-profit organization that has been recognizing top students across the country since 1955. The program is an academic scholarship competition for recognition and university scholarships.

Noah enjoys English and the study of the language usage. He also likes the sciences and spending time with his family. He is still undecided right now, about what college he would like to attend, but he is seriously considering the University of North Texas next year. Noah is a student at JECA where he is able to earn extensive college credit while still finishing his high school years in Judson ISD.

Being a finalist is the last step before scholarship winners are identified and represent a fraction of the average 1.6 million students who start the process. Approximately 15,000 nationwide are eventually selected as finalists. In May, National Merit Scholars are announced and we are hoping for the best for Noah.
